AZTEC HOUSING

LOCATION: Mexico City, Mexico

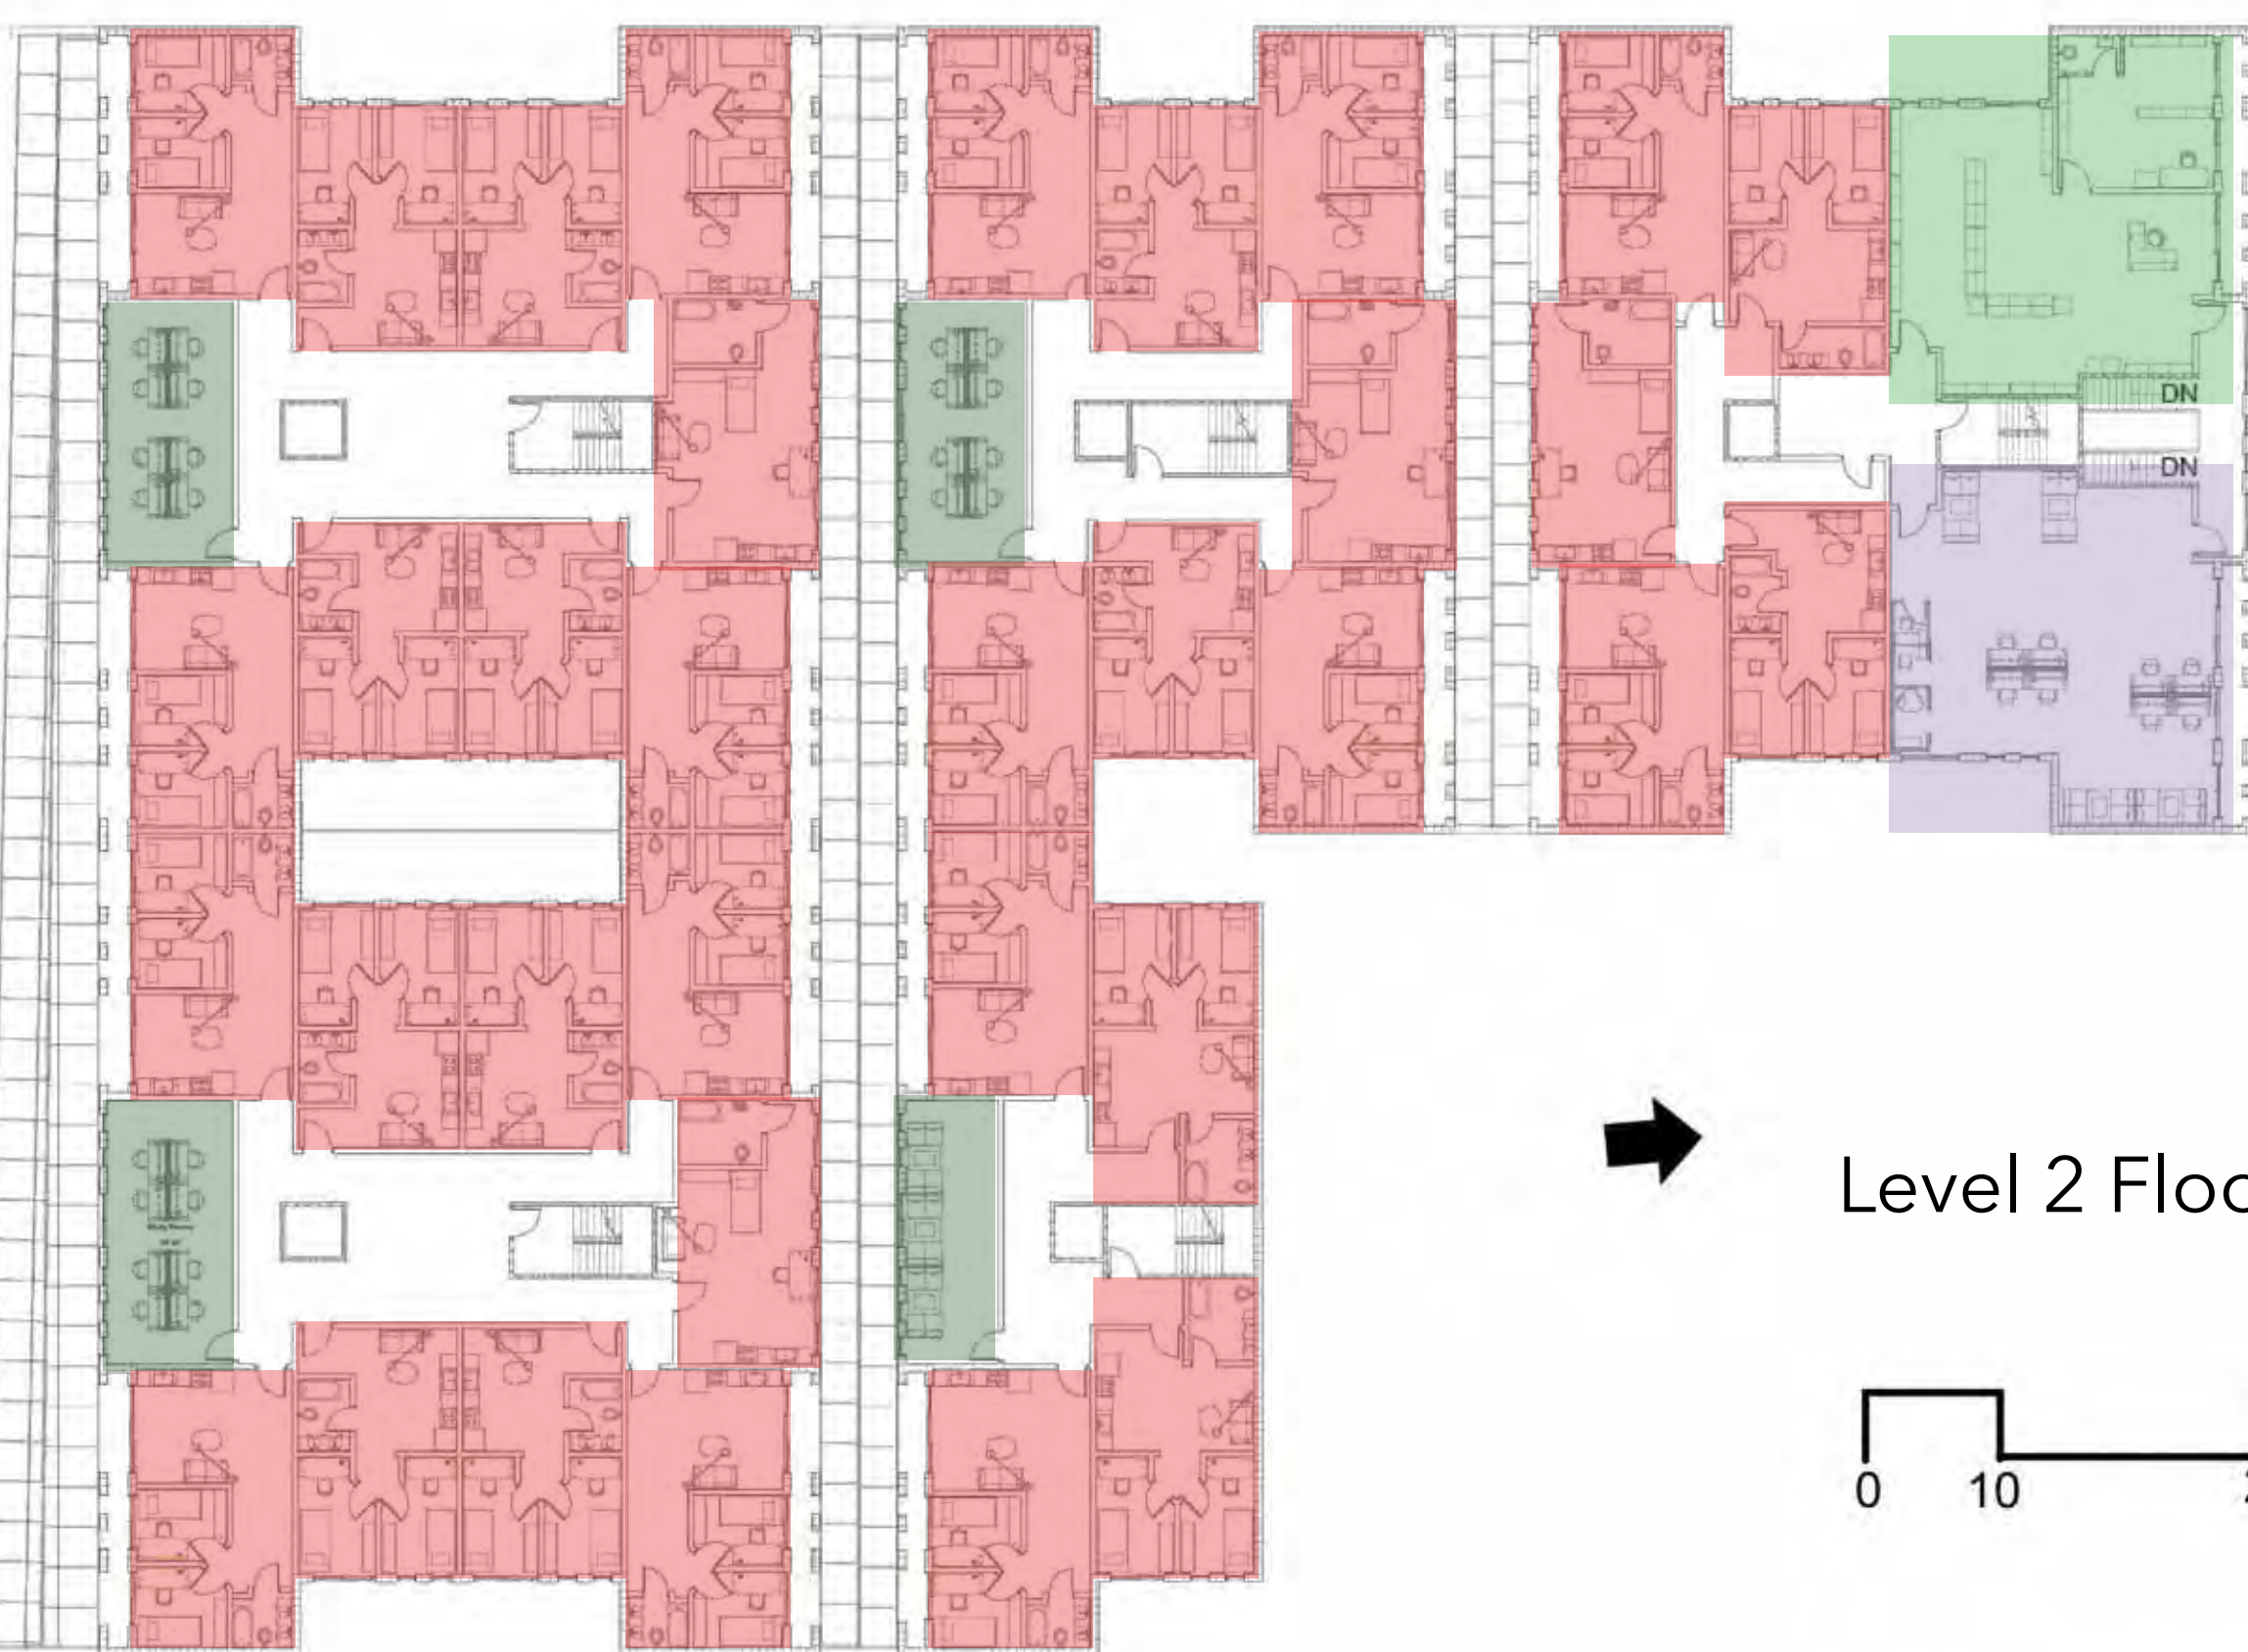

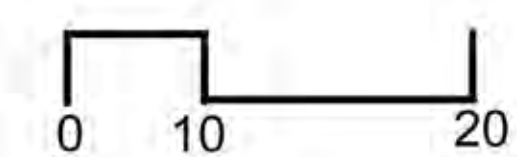

Located in Mexico City, this project focuses on creating cultural, communal, and safe housing for national and international university students. The goal is to establish a stepping-stone into university and city life while generating an enriched, motivating, and resourceful housing program. For students with no housing within the city, this project offers a place for them to stay as well as giving them the resources to find a long-term home. Inspired by the Aztec culture, the concepts of cycle, movement, and transformation are used to define the purpose of many spaces. The 15,660 meter squared (168,562 sqf) project gives help, guidance, and support to students and staff through a variety of resources and learning opportunities offered within the building.
